I have been meaning to drop you a line. Despite running this as a bootlegged, unfunded project, and turning over two lit. assts. in the interval, we have been plugging away at the bio/bibliographies of the chemists.

There is some preliminary summary on these printouts; and a lot of further scattered detail being assembled for overlay. I don't particularly advocate you waste much time looking at this yet; it is just an earnest that we are, in our own fashion, still looking into the files here.

P.S. Do you know of any industrial-health data on photographic processing. The aminophenols used in developers do not convey the most pleasant images to me!

Sincerely
John Lederberg.
